ABOUT

Eric's practice is primarily dedicated to counseling clients in a wide range of tax and estate planning matters and the administration of estates and trusts, including: asset protection; complex estate and gift planning; business succession planning; complex entity formation; planning for charitable organizations and private foundations; and the preservation of wealth through efficient transfer techniques. He is committed to helping clients navigate their relationships, plan for children, care for elderly parents and family members, protect assets, and provide a lasting legacy for friends, family or charitable organizations.

Eric is an Austin native who enjoys exploring all the fun activities that Central Texas has to offer with his wife, Krystal, sons Hayden and Hunter, and their playful dog, Darcy. He also enjoys watching college football and hunting.
